THE PUPPET SHOW OF MEMORY

By
MAURICE BARING
The Boston Transcript says:

"An English critic has told his public that if our civilization were to go down, posterity might reconstruct 'our highest complexities and refinements' from the pages of this book. This is a remarkably sweeping statement, and yet we do not know where there is another book that so nearly deserves this praise."

ACCUSED OF SELLING COAL HE NEVER HAD

W. A. Norton Held in $5,000
Bail on Charge of Grand Larceny.

FIRST CASE OF ITS KIND

Follows Investigation Made by Office of Fuel Administrator.

W. A. Norton, general manager of the Tidewater Fuel Corporation, of 90 West street, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on an indictment charging grand larceny in the second degree in connection with alleged coal price gouging.

This is the first case of its kind to be prosecuted here since Gov. Miller called a special session of the Legislature, which resulted in the appointment of a State Fuel Administrator, with power to prevent coal dealers from overcharging consumers.

Followed Woodin's Inquiry.
The indictment followed an investigation made by William H. Woodin, Fuel Administrator, who turned over the evidence to the District Attorney's office. Mr. Woodin said that further complaints of gouging and improper trade practices on the part of coal dealers will be promptly prosecuted.

"This is a public emergency and as public servants we intend to do our duty in this matter," Mr. Woodin said. "I hope these who are inclined to violate the law will realize that we mean business and save us from the duty of turning more cases over to District Attorney Banton. The difficulty with many complaints is that the complainants are unwilling to stand behind them in a formal statement. If more persons would cooperate with the fuel office, it would be possible to check gouging in almost every instance."

John F. O'Neill, Assistant District Attorney who presented the evidence, said the indictment charges that on October 27, Norton accepted from Arnold Tisch of 243 Brooklyn avenue, Brooklyn, a check for $126 in payment for ten tons of coal, which neither the defendant nor his company owned, and that he cashed the check. Mr. O'Neill said Norton's concern also had offices at 300 Madison avenue, 647 Amsterdam avenue and 32 Court street, Brooklyn.

Never Delivered Coal.
According to Mr. O'Neill agents of Horton's company collected from $2 to $10 on account in advance on orders they took from customers. Witnesses told the Grand Jury that the company never owned any coal and that no coal ever was delivered by it, and that Norton himself had said that no order would be taken unless there was a deposit.

"The Tidewater concern represented that the Equitable Trust Company was its fiscal agent," said Mr. O'Neill. "Customers were told that money or checks would be returned or made good by the trust company if for any reason the coal could not be delivered."

NOMINEE ACCUSED OF THEFT.

F. S. Stacey, Democrat, Charged With Passing Worthless Check.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
GENEVA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—F. S. Stacey, Democratic candidate for member of Assembly from Ontario county, has been arrested charged with grand larceny, it being alleged that he passed worthless checks amounting to hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars.

Physicians were appointed to-day to examine his mental condition. Stacey bought three luxurious cars in three days, giving checks in payment, which came back. He is popular in his town and was expected to poll a big vote to-morrow.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Dick Smith, English, defeated George Cook, the Australian heavyweight champion, in the fifteenth round of what was to have been a twenty round bout at the National Sporting Club to-night.

LOOK FOR 60 DEAD IN MINE EXPLOSION

They were among the first to reach the mine after the explosion, and in a short time were taken down the shaft to give absolution to five men near the bottom.

Cager Rescues Boy.

Mike Whalen, a rager, was working with his coupler, a boy named Cavendish, at the bottom of the shaft when the explosion occurred. Whalen put the boy on his back and started hand over hand on a water pipe for the surface. When almost half way up some one at the top started the cage from the bottom, and waiting his opportunity, Whalen jumped to the top of the cage and rode with the boy to safety.

The fan house, which had been wrecked by the explosion, was repaired and the fans started to clear the workings of black damp. Mules were sent down on the cage to assist in the distribution of quantities of lumber used in the building of brattices.

Many of the rescuers suffered from gas and numbers of them were brought to the surface, where, after receiving first aid, they insisted on returning to the workings. Three of the Cambria Company's cagers were among those most seriously affected, but H. W. Darr, in command of the Cambria car, said that all would recover.

Four rescue crews of five men each to-night were hunting for Paul Vannan, the fire boss. He went into the mine at 3:30 o'clock this morning and reported the mine was safe. He went down again at 6:40 o'clock and was not seen after that.

Early in the evening mine rescue crews from the Maryland Coal and Coke Company at St. Michael, Pa., and the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company at Johnstown joined the Federal rescuers and the Cambria Steel Company crew. The second United States rescue car was expected here from New York State to-morrow morning.

Killed 100 Feet From Air.

The rescue men all told the same story as they came to the surface. They declared that bodies were scattered through the workings for more than 500 feet. "The sad part of it," said one miner, "is that at least twenty of the victims were within a hundred feet of fresh air when they were overcome by the gas."

Every effort to-night was being made to find all of the living. As soon as that has been done the work of removing the dead will commence.

Men, women and children by the score crowded the police lines near the shaft. Many of them had been there since they heard of the explosion early in the day and after there was no indication they would leave their posts until the last body had been brought out.

On the "cot of honor" at the hospital rests a youth of 22. His name is Abe Craig. His coolness saved at least a dozen lives. "There isn't much to tell," said Craig. "We went down at 7 o'clock and entered heading No. 10 on the left. A few minutes later there was a crash. I told the boys that meant a cave-in, and we had better get out. Then there was a rush of gas. Luckily our door was open and the explosion would have knocked us down. I slammed it and about twenty-five of us waited to see what would happen."

Men Pray in Coal Tomb.

"Outside there were yells and one of our gang shouted to tell them there was fresh air in our place. I opened the door and three or four men staggered in. The boys rushed out and dragged in others. We revived them."

"Then I looked out again. All I could see was bodies. The afterdamp was rolling through the heading. I jumped inside and closed the door. There was nothing to do but wait for rescuers."

"From 7:30 until about 2 o'clock we stayed in the chamber. Older men were getting faint. Young fellows were holding out pretty well. Nobody had very much to say. Some of the boys were praying."

"Finally the afterdamp worked its way around and under the door. There was only one thing to do. I told them we would have to make a run for it. We opened the door and ran for the heading. It was a tough dash, stumbling over bodies. We began to choke. Some of the boys fell, but those of us who had any fight left kept on."

"We ran into fallen rock between the seventh and ninth headings. That probably was where the explosion took place. I had a hunch that if we got to the sixth heading we would get fresh air, but you can believe me that the last hundred yards was something awful. Coughing and strangling we kept on, and finally I ran slap bang into the air. I was dizzy, but I screamed to the boys."

Harding Expects Expenses to Be Within Revenues

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—President Harding and Director Lord of the budget are both confident that Government expenditures for the current year will be nearer $3,000,000,000 than $3,500,000,000.

Whether the deficit for the year, originally estimated at about $697,000,000 will be entirely avoided, will not be known until the Government's books are balanced at the close of business on June 30, 1923, but there is every indication that an approximation of expenditures with receipts will be accomplished.

MYSTERY TIP BARES $30,000 LIQUOR DEN

Raiders Seize Choice Stock
Near Heart of Financial District.

Twenty barrels of alcohol and many cases of choice liquors and champagne, valued at about $30,000, were seized yesterday by Frank J. Hale and James Kerrigan, dry agents, in a raid on the warehouse of Callahan and Healy, 94 Pearl street, near the heart of the financial district.

Hale and Kerrigan, accompanied by Ed Norway, a special agent of the Customs Department, went to the warehouse shortly after noon. They were permitted by Mr. Callahan to search the premises. The cache of liquor, most of which was from Nassau, the Bahamas, was found in the basement of the building. While Hale stood guard over the contraband Kerrigan and Norway went to get a search and seizure warrant from Samuel Hitchcock, United States Attorney.

The liquor is said to have been the property of "the Star Forwarding Company." Every case of the whiskey was wrapped in heavy brown paper, which bore no labels. The basement of the three story warehouse had been subleased by Mr. Callahan to men representing themselves as agents of the Star Forwarding Company. Trucks transported the liquor to the warehouse and it was stored there. Mr. Callahan said, by men employed by the firm.

E. C. Yellowley, prohibition enforcement director, and John D. Appleby, zone dry chief, accompanied by a number of dry agents, including John Murphy, field supervisor, went to the warehouse when Hale notified them of his find. The contraband stock was hauled to the Knickerbocker bonded warehouse for storage.

LIQUOR FRAUD INQUIRY TO REOPEN TO-MORROW

Grand Jury Will Look at Day
& Co. Books.

Inquiry into liquor frauds will be resumed to-morrow morning when the Federal Grand Jury reconvenes. The books of R. A. Day & Co., subpoenaed after Ralph A. Day had resigned as prohibition enforcement director, will be perused again. Frederick W. Henkel, bookkeeper for the Day firm, will explain entries and documents.

TRIES TO BOARD MOVING TRAIN, SLIPS, IS KILLED

Man of About 40 Is Crushed on Elevated Platform.

An unidentified man about forty years old was crushed to death last night between the station platform and the platform of a south bound Second avenue elevated train at the Forty-second street station. The police say that he tried to board the train after it had started.

He was about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighed 140 pounds. Traffic was tied up for about twenty minutes while firemen were extricating his body.

Two Bosses—are trying to use a judge as a pawn in their play for patronage.

One of them has a grudge to satisfy.

For that he is using the Democratic Party to attack the integrity of the courts.

The other has a brother to provide for.

For this he is abandoning principle.

For this he is jeopardizing the success of every Republican candidate for whom he did not obtain Democratic endorsement, as he did for his brother.

One of those he has sacrificed is the Republican candidate for Surrogate. Every vote for him is a vote to bind the bosses' bargain and elect Murphy's candidate.

In Surrogate Cohalan the people have a fair, impartial and upright judge. He has served their interests faithfully for fourteen years.

They would like to keep him on the job.

But the grudge and the brother stand in the way.

Because the Surrogate's Court safeguards the property of widows and orphans it is vital to keep it out of the clutches of the bosses.

The real contest lies between the Murphy candidate and Surrogate Cohalan, running independently on his excellent record.

Don't waste your vote

Vote for JOHN P. COHALAN

(for Surrogate)

and rebuke the bosses
